GENERAL FACULTIES COUNCIL

By FOLIO Staff

The regular meeting of General Faculties Council was held December 17, 1973.

OPEN STAFF FILES

In a written ballot, members voted in favor of the following motion made by D. M. ROSS, Dean of the Faculty of Science:

"THAT the policy approved by General Faculties Council on November 5, 1973, be rescinded and THAT the University revert to the status quo as it existed before the establishment of Open Staff Files on February 19, 1973." (See accompanying article.)

DOCTORAL PROGRAM

Council members approved a recommendation from the Academic Development Committee that a doctoral program in Music be established. Approval was based on the recommendations of an ad hoc committee established by the Council of the Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research, which specifically recommended that:

1. The program leading to the degree of DMus be approved,
2. The program be limited as proposed, to piano, harpsichord, violin, viola, and violoncello;
3. The rate of library acquisition be maintained at its present level and that arrangements be made for the consolidation of library holdings so that they may be effectively utilised.

PARKING APPEALS COMMITTEE

Members voted in favor of a motion made by GARY DRAPER regarding the right of General Faculties Council to establish a Parking Appeals Committee:

"THAT the Board of Governors be asked to delegate to the General Faculties Council Parking Appeals Committee the authority to receive and act upon all appeals against parking fines, and that such delegation of authority be made retroactive to May 10, 1971."

In April, Pembina Hall will mark her sixtieth year and say farewell to her last group of women residents. Although a decision on the building's future has not yet been made, it is unlikely that there will ever again be an occasion like the one in the 20s when the boys in Athabasca dragged a piano into the first floor south washroom to serenade the girls next door.

SENIOR INDUSTRIAL FELLOWSHIPS

Council approved a report made by the Sabbatical Leave Committee dealing with Senior Industrial Fellowships. The Committee conducted its examination upon request from the Deans' Council. Part of the Committee's report reads as follows:

"The Committee agreed with Deans' Council that a period of service to the University following the Senior Industrial Fellowship leave should be required to discharge the University's 20 percent contribution towards the Fellowship . . . The complete discharge of the University's 20 percent contribution should require no more than two years, as that period is effectively equivalent to one-third of the time required for eligibility for a sabbatical leave (the Deans' Council recommendation was six years).

OPEN STAFF FILES

By FOLIO Staff

The decision of General Faculties Council on December 17, 1973 to rescind its earlier approval (November 5) of the Open Staff Files Policy was made after much debate and comment. At a special meeting of Council on November 26, D. M. Ross, Dean of the Faculty of Science, spoke in support of his motion for rescinding the policy. He said that during discussions in his Faculty regarding the implications of the Open Staff Files Policy, it became evident that a massive reorganization of the filing systems would be necessary. This position—the sheer magnitude of paperwork—was supported by other Council members.

Dean Ross further stated that "the position of the Faculty of Science was that the University had no right to request references unless the confidentiality of the reference was to be respected." He cited two letters as examples of responses the Faculty of Science had received in an Open Files context. The first letter clearly stated that making evaluations available to the person being evaluated placed the referee in a potentially difficult situation, as he was an officer of a professional society and the editor of a journal. He therefore could not comply with the request for an evaluation.

The writer of the second letter, a professor at another university, refused the request because of his personal friendship with the individual concerned. He believed that while it was possible to make an objective professional evaluation of a friend when confidentiality was assured, such would not be the case if the evaluation were to be made available to the friend.

In a written submission to General Faculties Council, another member argued against this point of view, stating "I contend that, in principle, anyone evaluating the scholarly activity of another can deal with this in an objective fashion based on evidence and his own evaluation of that evidence. If he has carried out this assignment with objectivity, he should be able to prepare an evaluation which need not be confidential." This member openly announced his opposition to the principle of confidentiality.

Another Council member said he had requested 40 letters of evaluation this year, and had let the referees know that their letters might possibly be seen by those being evaluated. He pointed out that he had received all of the requested evaluations with no reservations and that he could detect no difference in their substance from letters written in previous years.

Another member, a department chairman, spoke in support of Dean Ross's motion, noting that he had met with unanimous refusals when requesting non-confidential evaluations. He explained that the University maintains international standards in many of its disciplines and requires evaluations from internationally-known specialists, most of whom would be reluctant, if not completely unwilling, to contribute non-confidential evaluations.

One Council member, supported by several others, spoke strongly of the potential legal difficulties of maintaining closed staff files. It was his opinion that the University could repeatedly be involved in law suits over the issue, and that the law would not necessarily protect the confidentiality of referees.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE PROGRAM

The Department of Extension is offering a series of comprehensive courses in English as a second language at intermediate and advanced levels beginning January 28.

Placement tests will be given to ensure that each student is enrolled in the course which will benefit him most. Testing dates are January 16 at 7 p.m., January 19 at 9 a.m., and January 23 at 7 p.m. The test fee is $3.

Following the course, the student will be tested again to measure his improvement.

Courses will cover remedial English conversation, pronunciation, reading comprehension, improvement of writing skills, and formal report writing. One hour per week will be spent in the language laboratory. Instructors will be experienced teachers of English as a second language who have taught in universities across Canada. Detailed information on the course content of the nine courses being offered may be obtained by calling 432-3116 or 432-1497. The fee per course is $60 which includes textbooks.

RESOURCE DEVELOPMENT STUDIED AT CONFERENCE

Participants from all over Canada were at Banff between Christmas and the New Year for the annual conference of the Western Association of Sociology and Anthropology.

The three-day conference focused on two main topics: criminology and corrections, and resource development. The two sessions on resource development took the form of a workshop which endorsed the request of the Canadian Sociology and Anthropology Association (CSAA) sub-committee on social policy that "further development of Canada's northern resources be postponed until the claims of the native people have been justly resolved; the essential environmental, economic, and social research is carried out by individuals and agencies independent of corporations and governments; the results of this research have been reported to people in the area; and arrangements have been made for the active participation by the people of the area in policy decisions about development."

ARTHUR DAVIS, Professor of Sociology and a speaker at Banff, is chairman of the social policy committee of the CSAA. He says that this topic is also expected to receive major discussion at the Canadian annual meeting in Toronto this year. "We are seeking public dialogue on this significant public issue," Dr. Davis said. "We feel strongly about what is happening with resource development and wish to bring into focus some of the problems we see."

Guests invited to participate at the Banff Conference included SALLY WEAVER, an anthropologist from Waterloo University; RICHARD SALISBURY of McGill University; JAMES WASHEE, representing the Indian Brotherhood of the Northwest Territories; and a representative from the Quebec Indian Association.

Other conference sessions discussed current problems in the juvenile courts, the sociology of deviance, changes in family styles, and the police and the courts.

The annual sale of CANSAVE Christmas cards managed by staff of the Department of English office this year raised $690.05. All proceeds go to the Canadian Save the Children Fund.

GENERAL FACULTIES COUNCIL COMMITTEE VACANCIES

General University Disciplinary Hearings: Impanelling Boards. General Faculties Council has now adopted a new policy concerning discipline, law, and order on campus and has established a system of tribunals, to be called General University Disciplinary Hearings, to hear and determine charges made against students. The tribunals are to consist of three members, two of whom must be students, who will be appointed from Impanelling Boards, the members of which will be approved by General Faculties Council. The General Faculties Council Nominating Committee is now seeking nominations for both staff and student members to staff the Impanelling Boards; those interested in serving on the tribunals, or who wish to suggest nominations, are advised to contact the Secretary of the Nominating Committee as soon as possible.

Current Vacancies on Committees. The Nominating Committee is seeking nominations for one academic staff member for the Campus

Law Review Committee, one student member for the Admission Requirements Committee, one member to serve on the Selection Committee for the Chairman of the Department of Soil Science, and one member to serve on the Selection Committee for the Chairman of the Department of Food Science. Suggested nominations for these vacancies would be appreciated.

Replenishment of Standing Committees, 1974. During the winter months, the Nominating Committee will be seeking nominations for membership on the standing committees of General Faculties Council to replace members whose terms of office end in May and June, 1974, and those who will be on sabbatical leave during the period July 1, 1974 to June 30, 1975. All full-time and part-time members of the academic staff, the non-academic staff, the graduate students and the undergraduate students of the University are eligible for election to committees of General Faculties Council and, in most cases, membership is not restricted to members of Council.

Those interested in serving on committees of General Faculties Council, or who wish to suggest nominations, should contact the Secretary of the Nominating Committee, MRS. PAT MAERTZ, 2-1 University Hall, telephone 432-4965.
